

Activities

Fishing: Lough Conn is renowned for good brown trout fishing and spring salmon fishing. The season is from February to September. Enniscoe has its own private landing stage, boats and Ghillies. The fishery manager will be pleased to arrange a day on the lake for you, or to organise a programme that includes salmon fishing on nearby rivers, sea fishing or estuary fishing. Fishing equipment available for hire. Tuition arranged. For further information log on to: www.cloonamoynefishery.com

Golf:

There are attractive seaside courses at Enniscrone, Carne and at nearby Westport there is an internationally acclaimed championship course. Ballina has an attractive parkland course.

Riding:

These are good riding stables in the area. Tuition, hiring and day treks are all available.

Walking:

There are many scenic hill walks in the area, there is also a looped walk on the grounds of Enniscoe.

DJ & Susan Kellett,
Enniscoe House,
Castlehill, Ballina,
Co. Mayo, Ireland.

Tel.: + 353 (0)96 31112

Email: mail@enniscoe.com

Website: www.enniscoe.com

 www.facebook.com/EnniscoeHouse

Open:

1ST APRIL TO 31ST OCTOBER

Member of:
Ireland's Bluebook

Approved by:
The Irish Tourist Board as a specialist historic house

ENNISCOE HOUSE

A Georgian Mansion overlooking Lough Conn surrounded by a wooded estate.

ENNISCOE HOUSE

Enniscoe House is owned by Susan Kellett, a descendant of the original family who settled on the lands in the 1660's. It is a fine Georgian home which has recently been declared a Heritage House of Ireland, and has been described as the "last great house of North Mayo." The family portraits, antique furniture, open fire, good food and wine, and a warm welcome, all contribute to the pleasant and relaxed atmosphere. The main bedrooms, with attractive views of parkland and lake, have canopy or four-poster beds, with private bathrooms.

Enniscoe Estate on the shores of Lough Conn has its own farm and gardens. The house is set in parkland surrounded by mature woodland, through which paths run to the lake. With its tranquil setting and family atmosphere Enniscoe offers you the special opportunity to experience the natural grace and beauty of Ireland. There are also some attractively renovated self-catering units in the stable yard behind the house, and old farm buildings have been taken over by the local Historical Society and here a Heritage Centre for North Mayo has been developed. There is a small museum shop and tea room. The Centre also runs the Family History Research Unit for north Mayo.

Enniscoe House is a good centre for exploring North Mayo, which is a fascinating though little known area. There are great cliff's along the north coast, where the stone age settlements at Ceide Fields have been excavated, sandy beaches at Ballycastle and Lacken, and unspoilt areas of small lakes, forests and boglands around Nephin Mountain (2,646 ft.). There is also Achill Island to the south, and Sligo Yeats Country to the north within easy distance.

